

The Henrico County Department of Planning has an opening for a Planner IV in the Development Review and Design Division, which focuses on review of high profile and/or complex urban planning and landscape architecture projects, and provides professional, high level planning assistance in regard to all land development activities and special studies. This position places emphasis on production of planning design and policy documents related to land use and development in urban and rural environments, participation in public outreach for planning projects, and serving as an advisory design and policy liaison for zoning and development applications. This involves considerable latitude for project implementation and preparation of alternative designs that provide solutions during the land development review process when appropriate. Excellent written and oral presentation skills are required and experience presenting at municipal hearings is desirable. The position requires a significant amount of interaction with various state and county agencies, county administration, the Planning Commission, and the Board of Supervisors. Attendance at public meetings or participation on work-related activities outside of normal working hours (evenings) may be required.

For more information and to apply: <https://henrico.us/services/jobs/>