

Job Position Title: Landscape Architect / Project Manager

Landscape Architecture Bureau [LAB] is a well-established design firm based in Washington, DC with a focus on making original, memorable places and a commitment to promoting biodiversity.

We are looking for an experienced landscape architect with 2-10 years' experience. We say simply that you should have the capability to both design and manage urban open space projects at the high level we strive for. If you have only a couple of years' experience but can handle the substantial responsibilities we will entrust to you, then great. Of course, if you have a more extensive track record, that would be fine, too.

Our project mix has historically been about 1/2 private, mixed-use projects, about 1/3 public projects (parks, library grounds, schools, etc.) and some other interesting odds and ends. We are looking for designers who are committed to the highest design standards and who have the form-making and collaboration skills to make it happen. The right personality is critical - curious, engaged, resourceful, energetic and generous, not to mention smart and funny. LAB presents an opportunity to lead, to grow professionally and to design great places in a collegial environment.

Our team members regularly visit projects on-site, so our preferred candidates should either live in or be willing to relocate to the DC-area.
